

The Zarathushtrian Assembly is currently in the process of designing a comprehensive explanation of Zoroastrianism which would be contained in a number of individual entries, somewhat similar to Wikipedia. It will start with the basic and slowly transition to more complex topics. It will also have its own section on the website.

While we are currently in the process of designing and programming this, we have decided to temporarily place our entries/articles here in resources so people can read them in the meantime. We hope these entries are useful to you! – Caleb Goodfellow